Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Wednesday 02 Jun 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Thundery showers developing across southern areas today.

Today:
Very warm with a good deal of sunshine for most. Eastern coasts cooler with an onshore breeze and low cloud in the northeast. Cloudier in the south with showers and some thunderstorms possible, these moving into some central areas later.

Tonight:
Thundery showers moving north, followed by clear spells, but also low cloud and coastal mist in the south. A warm night, except in the north-east.

Thursday:
Showers across northern areas soon fading, then cloud breaking up to allow sunny spells, but scattered thunderstorms developing in some eastern parts of England where it will be very warm.

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
A lot of fine and dry weather, although a few thundery showers remain possible, mainly in the SE Friday. Temperatures a little lower nationwide Friday, but recovering into the weekend.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.